DEFINITIONS

Amnesty box. A container into which personnel may place any item, without penalty, before customs processing.

Antihijack security. All measures taken to reduce the risk of hijacking aircraft, with particular attention to the exclusion of weapons from the passenger compartment of an aircraft. (See Air Force Regulation 60-14.)

Closed evidence voucher. An evidence voucher concerning evidence from which final disposition has been made by the custodian.

Controlled substance. A drug or other substance, or immediate precursor thereof, listed in 21 USC 812. General categories included in this section are narcotics, derivatives of the cannabis sativa plant, amphetamines, barbiturates, and hallucinogens.

Crime control. The detection and investigation of crimes and offenses and the apprehension and protection of offenders.

Crime repression. The reduction of crimes and offenses through such measures as patrolling, physical security and crime prevention surveys and inspections, observation of persons and places considered crime-producing, and employment of off-limits procedures to preclude military personnel from participating in activities conducive to crime.

Criminal complaint. An alleged criminal offense reported to or observed by military or civilian police personnel or USACIDC personnel, whether subsequently determined to be founded or unfounded.

Crisis management team (CMT). A team found at a major command or installation level concerned with plans, procedures, techniques, policies, and controls for dealing with terrorism, special threats, or other major disruptions occurring on government installations or facilities. The team considers the local, national, and international implications of major disruptions and establishes contact with the Army Operations Center as the situation escalates, requiring higher level involvement and guidance. Normally at installation level, the CMT is established at or in proximity to the designated emergency operations center.

Customs exclusion area. Clearly defined area into which cleared customs personnel enter before they depart.

Evidence ledger. The bound ledger or record book kept by the evidence custodian to provide double accountability control through cross-reference with the evidence vouchers.

Evidence voucher. The original DA Form 4137 which, upon presentation to the evidence custodian, becomes an evidence voucher.

Evidence subvoucher. A carbon or reproduced copy of the original evidence voucher used to effect the temporary release of evidence for any reason.

Founded offense. A criminal offense that has been proven to have been committed. The determination that a founded offense exists is made by the appropriate police agency and is not dependent upon judicial process.

High-risk personnel. US personnel who, by their grade, assignment, symbolic value, or relative isolation, are more likely to be attractive or accessible terrorist targets.

Identified offender. An individual identified by police action as the subject or perpetrator of a criminal offense.

Nonintoxicating malt beverage. Any alcoholic malt beverage having an alcoholic content of less than 3.2 percent by weight.

Open evidence voucher. An evidence voucher concerning evidence for which the evidence custodian has accountability.

Referral. A process in which the parties in conflict are led to consider some specific form of professional counseling service.

Strategic information. Information that has no immediate applicability but may be used in some future investigation or program. Strategic information gathering is a long-range continuous process.

Tactical information. Information that has immediate applicability to the employment of units in combat.

Total obligational authority (TOA). The total financial requirements of the five-year defense program or any component thereof required to support the approved program of a given fiscal year.

Unfounded offense. A criminal complaint in which a determination is made that a criminal offense was not committed or did not occur. The determination is based on police action, not on court-martial or civilian court verdict.
